🔱 Spotlight: Get to know your Barony! 🌀

Name: Master Ii Saburou Katsumori, Barony of Stierbach

Blazen: Argent, a Japanese well frame crosswise between four crescents in cross horns inwards conjoined gules.

How did you discover the SCA?

I started my SCA journey back in 1996. I was in a theater class at the University of Alaska, Fairbanks. Whilst taking part in a "people watching" exercise I saw a bunch of people who were dressed in armor, hitting each other, while others were dressed in tunics and dresses dancing in the University common area. Some of them were friends I knew from high school, in Juneau, so I decided to see what it was all about. I ended up joining in and dropping the theater class.

What do you wish you had known as a newcomer?

I wish I had known more about all of the opportunities that were available. We were pretty small and so you got a look at what was local, and that was pretty much it. From Alaska, Pennsic was just some far off, mystical place.

Can you give an example of a skill you have developed in the SCA?

So many.

As an autocrat you learn planning and resource management, as well as how to plead and work with teams of diverse people.

As a herald I learned basics of graphic design and contrast that I still apply today, even for such mundane things as a PowerPoint briefing.

I also learned how to project my voice, which is a great asset when you are giving briefings to large crowds.

That's above and beyond what I learned about history, clothing, armor, etc. The ability to sew is incredibly useful, even if you don't use it constantly.

How about a mundane skill that you have brought to your SCA experience?

I guess I answered some of that above, but one thing I brought with me was my theater experience and a love for singing. Both have served me well, either at bardic circles or court schtick. I may not be the most accomplished in those areas, but having confidence in myself helps me to have fun, and hopefully helps make it fun for other people.

Can you share a story that people might not know about you or your persona?

Despite my love of Japanese culture and history, I once had a class on how Japanese really didn't fit into the SCA. I was really looking for how to make it work to my standards. Oddly enough, much of that research (and the accompanying feedback) helped lead me into my first Japanese persona.

Another thing people may not know: during our time as Paletine Baroness and Baron of the Far West, we introduced new laws to allow rapier to be used to determine the Baron and Baroness. At the time they allowed heavy combat and A&S competitions, but a large part of the Barony at the time were rapier fighters. I recall the event where we read the new laws in at court: we made a game of it and had people switch off who was reading so that everyone could participate.

If you could travel to any time and place on earth, what would you choose?

This is hard, because there are so many. I would love to see what Japan was really like in the 4th and 5th centuries, before everything was written down to support a particular narrative of history. But I'm also intrigued by Kuqa and areas of the Silk Road in what is today Western China during the 6th and 7th centuries.

Describe a time when "the dream" came alive for you.

Three of us, all Japanese personas, were walking down the road at Pennsic one evening. We were chatting away, two noblemen and a priest, when we came upon the famous "Hell" party, and approached by someone in rags claiming to be a plague demon. As he started "cursing" us with plague we all simply put our hands together, bowed our heads, and began chanting "Namu Jizō Bosatsu" (Hail Kṣitigarbha Boddhisatva). After several moments of spontaneous chanting in unison, the "demon" left and we are all congratulating ourselves on our great spiritual accomplishment.

I can think of few other places where you can be so immersed in the experience that this kind of thing could happen.

What has kept you active in the SCA?

Friends, fighting, and a sense of accomplishment. Even though I don't attend events as often these days, due to other responsibilities, I still stay involved in groups online and through <http://www.sengokudaimyo.com>

Is there a pre-1600s story, place, person, or relic that you wish more people knew about?

Ooh, that one is hard. The way agree is Japan, but if I'm honest, I currently wish there was a greater understanding and appreciation of the Sogdians, a northern Iranian (aka Persian) ethnic group that largely seem to have acted as the linchpin in the trade routes between east and west in the 6th through 8th centuries (at least). They left a cultural imprint from Japan to Europe, and yet most people know hardly anything about them.

What's your favorite medieval recipe?

Digby's savory toasted cheese. I love the original with bits of bacon and peas.

What was your first Event / experience?

As mentioned above, dancing and fighting in the University common area. It was drilled into us all that dancing was important to fighting, and I find that all fighters should learn to dance.

Do you have a favorite event? And why?

My favourite event was "Sword and Chrysanthemum". It was held in the East Kingdom years ago, and was the best Japanese feast I've ever attended. Everyone did their best to dress appropriately to the theme, as the main feast was held seated on the ground with food served on traditional trays. While there were other activities at the event, and even a separate, simpler feast for those who desired it, that feast was unlike anything I've done since.

My second favourite event was in Thailand, with the Canton of Golden Playne, which we held in a traditional Thai house. The atmosphere was incredible, but not just because of the exotic location, but because of the people. It was a young group, mostly consisting of local Thai members who were just starting to experience everything. They were so incredibly enthusiastic and involved. It was just wonderful and exciting.

Are there people who have become influences in your SCA? And why/how?

The late Baron Edward of Effingham was my Laurel and the one who really encouraged me to study Japanese history. He encouraged me to always try and do my best at it. I always appreciated his insight and help.

What's in a name? Your name?

My first SCA name was "Godric Logan", but as I went with Japanese I changed it to Ii Saburō Katsumori.

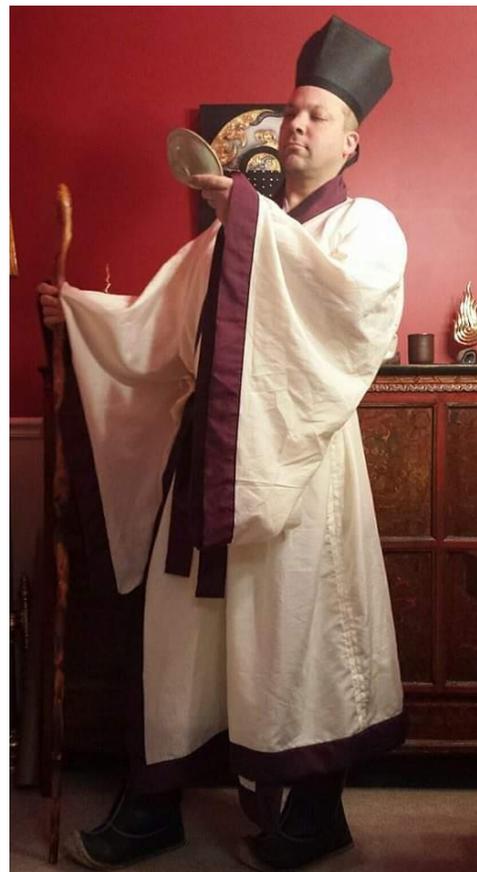

I chose the family name Ii in part because I loved the story of Ii Naomasa. I also liked that "Ii" is also how you pronounce the Japanese word for "good". Thus it was a "good" name. :D

Saburō means "third son". I appreciated it for the cadence and pronunciation, as it uses a non-standard pronunciation of "three".

"Katsumori" I chose as an auspicious name: piling up victories (not that I've done much of that). I originally thought of using "Nao" or "Masa". Most of the later Ii family members shared these characters, but at the time I didn't want to make any presumptuous claims.

Over time, I've come to use the name as a jumping off point for further research. I eventually made a trip to the birthplace of the Ii family. According to tradition, the first person to hold the name was born and abandoned in a well in the 10th century, where he was found by the local governor, a member of the influential Fujiwara family, who adopted him into his family. He eventually became a local administrator of the "Ii-no-tani" (Valley of the Well... the same well he was apparently found in). The family would have been "Ii no Fujiwara": Ii(-no-tani) branch of the Fujiwara clan. This just became "Ii" in most usages.

These are the kinds of rabbit holes I find fascinating.
